Ancient Sanctuaries

Unearthed in Cyprus.

BERLIN. The conclusions drawn from the archaeological discoveries recently made at Larnaca in Cyprus by Dr. Max Gutschalk are reported by the discoverer of the Larnaca inscriptions. Professor Gutschalk of Leipzig, who has recently returned from a study of the Cypriot collections in the Metropolitan Museum in New York. As the result of his exhaustive research on the island of Cyprus, the Greek inscriptions have unearthed what he regards as the most ancient Greek monument of Larnaca. He has discovered remains of houses, altars, and sanctuaries dedicated to ancient deities. Inscriptions in Akkadian, Zeno, and other Greek dialects.

Light Chorus Sings for Poor.

LONDON.—Light Chorus, better known as the "Vocal Band," and still better known as the "Vocal Band," is making energetic efforts to "establish" itself by singing on the streets of London. The chorus consists of the widows and orphans of the British sailors. The band of the chorus is composed of some one, which was her husband, then Captain Vande-Bell, because he married her instead of the chorus. The chorus is now singing on the streets of London, and is making energetic efforts to "establish" itself by singing on the streets of London.

BURNS BEATS STANLEY
IN A ROUGH BATTLE

Aggressive Salesmanship.

If you sell a line of staples in a market where the competition is keen, aggressive salesmanship must be met with aggressive salesmanship. If you would hold your business against the man who is the best advertiser generally gets the best business where other things are equal. He must be able to present his goods in the most effective way. He must use the media of large circulation and endeavor, if possible, to use a method of advertising which will attract attention either to the quality of the goods or the quality of the service.

Three clotheiers were doing business on the same side of the street and in adjoining stores. On a Monday morning, one displayed a large sign, "Selling out at cost," another put out a sign which read "Bankrupt sale."

The third, whose store was between the two, finding himself sandwiched between such competitors, seized a golden opportunity and by displaying a sign "Main entrance over his door, resped the greatest part of the business that the other two had advertised for.

This is aggressive of the keen, imaginative kind. The merchant who is alert to seize every opportunity will not leave unsecured such a golden field as the local newspaper. Advertising will help a manufacturer bring his goods from the top shelf into the dealer's show window.

The Boston American offers a golden chance in Boston. The most progressive local businessman who is not a manufacturer who sells these merchants will find the local newspaper the best way to increase his sales to these merchants. As the manufacturer increases the local demand for his goods the merchant will increase his order.

The Boston American can take the advertisement of your business into almost 400,000 homes daily. Suppose you wanted to send mailmen into these homes, you couldn't get a bearing. Through the Boston American you can reach the man or woman in his or her home and in this way secure a hearing that would otherwise be impossible.

Address The Trade Ad Department, Boston American, for further particulars.

SCHOLZ BACK
AFTER CHAMPS

By SOL PLEX.
CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Rudolph Scholz is back and celebrated his home coming by beating a challenger in Ad Wolskel and all the other lightweight.

He may say he is not twenty-one and that he intends to be the lightweight champion of the world before another year has passed.

Condition really suits the cause of victory and defeat. The Digby fight badly during the last half of the fight, and was almost too weary to stand on his pins at the finish.

On his performance against the Jersey boy he is fast on the down grade, and Burns did not win any greater honors by his showing.

Stanley Very Nervous.
Stanley was apparently very nervous at the opening, and missed repeatedly, while Frankie worked the two-two punch with great success in the first position. In the second, Stanley found himself and began to show his special quality.

It is a long time since Burns and Frankie met, and Stanley was not in the best of health. He was full of gloom in the fourth and fifth, and Burns had much the worst of the exchange. In the fifth, Stanley was close of the latter period. Stanley's crowd and Stanley's fight were not so much as they were in the first round.

It was far from being a pretty exhibition. Stanley became the clincher and Stanley did. They tugged, hauled and mauled about the ring, with Frankie beating them apart by brute force. Stanley's particular design was to get Burns' head in clench and do his best to twist the neck. Many times Stanley got in from the body, and became the centre of a maelstrom.

The boys kept on punching whenever they had a chance, and the fight was a real war. Stanley's crowd and Stanley's fight were not so much as they were in the first round.

Who's Who
IN SPORT

George V. Tuohy, No. 38.
George V. Tuohy, wrestling expert and referee, manager of the New York and Boston wrestling circuit, is well known as a promoter of high-grade sporting events.

He has many interesting things to tell about his trip to Australia where he met the late, Johnny Sumner, who was a great wrestler.

"I fought Sumner in Australia," he said. "I had four of them. I had the satisfaction, however, of carrying three championships."

"I won the heavyweight championship of Queensland by defeating a fellow named 155 pounds, but the victory was not a great one."

"I was won by Johnny Thompson, but he weighed 150 pounds when he fought the trick. Johnny Sumner was a great wrestler, and he was a great wrestler."

"I had a lot of fun in Australia," he said. "I had a lot of fun in Australia, and I had a lot of fun in Australia."

"I had a lot of fun in Australia," he said. "I had a lot of fun in Australia, and I had a lot of fun in Australia."

Laurie puts it
UP TO VATTER

By ED COGSWELL.
Bentley and Young, the prominent Boston players, is not going to permit Laurie Vatter to wear the crown of champion of New England without having a struggle for it. He was a value at the AMERICAN sporting department, and he would accept the challenge to be made by Vatter.

In the first place, the match must be at 152 pounds, on a 5x10 table, for 1000 points, in 10 minutes, and the winner will receive $1000.

If these terms are to the liking of Vatter, the match will be a public ball, and the winner will be crowned champion of New England.

In the second place, the match must be at 152 pounds, on a 5x10 table, for 1000 points, in 10 minutes, and the winner will receive $1000.

George V. Tuohy, No. 38.
George V. Tuohy, wrestling expert and referee, manager of the New York and Boston wrestling circuit, is well known as a promoter of high-grade sporting events.

He has many interesting things to tell about his trip to Australia where he met the late, Johnny Sumner, who was a great wrestler.

"I fought Sumner in Australia," he said. "I had four of them. I had the satisfaction, however, of carrying three championships."

"I won the heavyweight championship of Queensland by defeating a fellow named 155 pounds, but the victory was not a great one."

"I was won by Johnny Thompson, but he weighed 150 pounds when he fought the trick. Johnny Sumner was a great wrestler, and he was a great wrestler."

"I had a lot of fun in Australia," he said. "I had a lot of fun in Australia, and I had a lot of fun in Australia."
